Re-imagining the Consumer; Transforming Consumer Protection Law

Thursday, 7 July 2022, 15:00 - 16:30

Dr Stephanie Law

Associate Professor in Law, University of Southampton

Dr Stephanie Law has been an Associate Professor in Law at Southampton Law School since March 2022, having joined as a lecturer in October 2019. Between 2015 and 2019, she was a Senior Research Fellow at the Max Planck Institute Luxembourg for Procedural Law and prior to joining the MPI, she held a Leverhulme Trust-funded postdoctoral researcher position at the Faculty of Law, McGill University, Montréal. She received her PhD from the European University Institute, Florence in 2014.

Stephanie teaches in the fields of international adjudication, data protection and private international law, and is engaged in research, and has published widely, in EU law and private international law. She has a particular interest in fundamental rights protections of consumers, transnational private and public regulation, and legal theory and has worked in these fields as a researcher for numerous organisations, national governments and international institutions. In the fields of consumer protection specifically, she is currently a co-PI on NoBias, an interdisciplinary, Marie Curie-funded ITN on bias and artificial intelligence, member of the Academic Research Panel of Blackstone Chambers, London, and of the UNCTAD Working Group on Consumer Protection in e-Commerce.
